

Meet Lola the Flamingo, a beautiful bird with vibrant pink feathers, but with one small problem - she is incredibly clumsy and has no rhythm. Unfortunately her clumsiness extends into her school life as well. With a little encouragement from her teachers, Lola starts her journey by enrolling in a tap dance class. Lola learns that setbacks and challenges are never reasons to give up, but opportunities for growth and self-discovery. By embracing her new found love for dance, Lola not only learns a way to express herself but also gains confidence to overcome any obstacle that stands in her way.

This story of perseverance and encouragement will warm your heart. You might even learn a new tap step or two along the way. Step into the world of dance with your child and discover "How Lola Got Her Wings," written by National Director, Craig Scribner.
